What is Eating Together?

Eating Together is a federally funded, congregate nutrition program, established under the Older American's Act in 1972. The program's goal is to promote health, reduce isolation and provide a nutritious meal in a congregate dining setting. Eating Together offers Baltimore City Older Adults nutritious meals in a friendly and social atmosphere and opportunities to explore different areas of interest, broaden horizons, make new friends, attend educational events, and socialize.

How does the program work?

Eligible participants must register for the Eating Together Program by completing a registration form. All Eating Together participants are issued a membership card that they can swipe each time they attend a meal program. Menus are posted monthly to allow participants to reserve a meal on the day that they wish to attend. The program offers nutritious lunches or dinner meals. The program also offers Kosher and Korean meals.

What is the cost of the meal?

There is no fee to join the program or for the meal itself, but every one is given an opportunity to make a confidential donation towards the cost of the meal and allow more older adults to participate.

Who Is Eligible?

Older Adults 60 years of age or older, and their spouses regardless of age, are eligible to participate in Eating Together. Disabled persons younger than 60 years may also participate if they reside in a residential building where an Eating Together meal program is in operation.

What are the benefits?

Every participant benefits from attending the Eating Together program because they are able to enjoy nutritious meal in a social setting as well as participate in an activity. Each time a participant swipes their Membership card, we can show the benefits and report to the agencies that fund the program how valuable the service is to the older adults in Baltimore City.
